Read About Our Process of Making

Seamless Wedding Rings

THE alloyed gold, after being carefully melted to assure perfect mixing of the fine silver and copper, with which the fine or 24 karat gold is alloyed to desired karat, is poured into an ingot, $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick. By means of power rolls the gold is rolled into a ribbon four or five feet long, to the required thickness—measurements being taken to the 1-1000 of an inch.

This gold ribbon is fed into a punch press and a blank of the desired diameter obtained, as shown in cuts A and B on next page.

These blanks are now fed to another punch press, which with one blow transforms the flat blank to a cup, as shown in cut C.

Another punch press cuts out the bottom of the cup, and a flat ring is left—cut D.

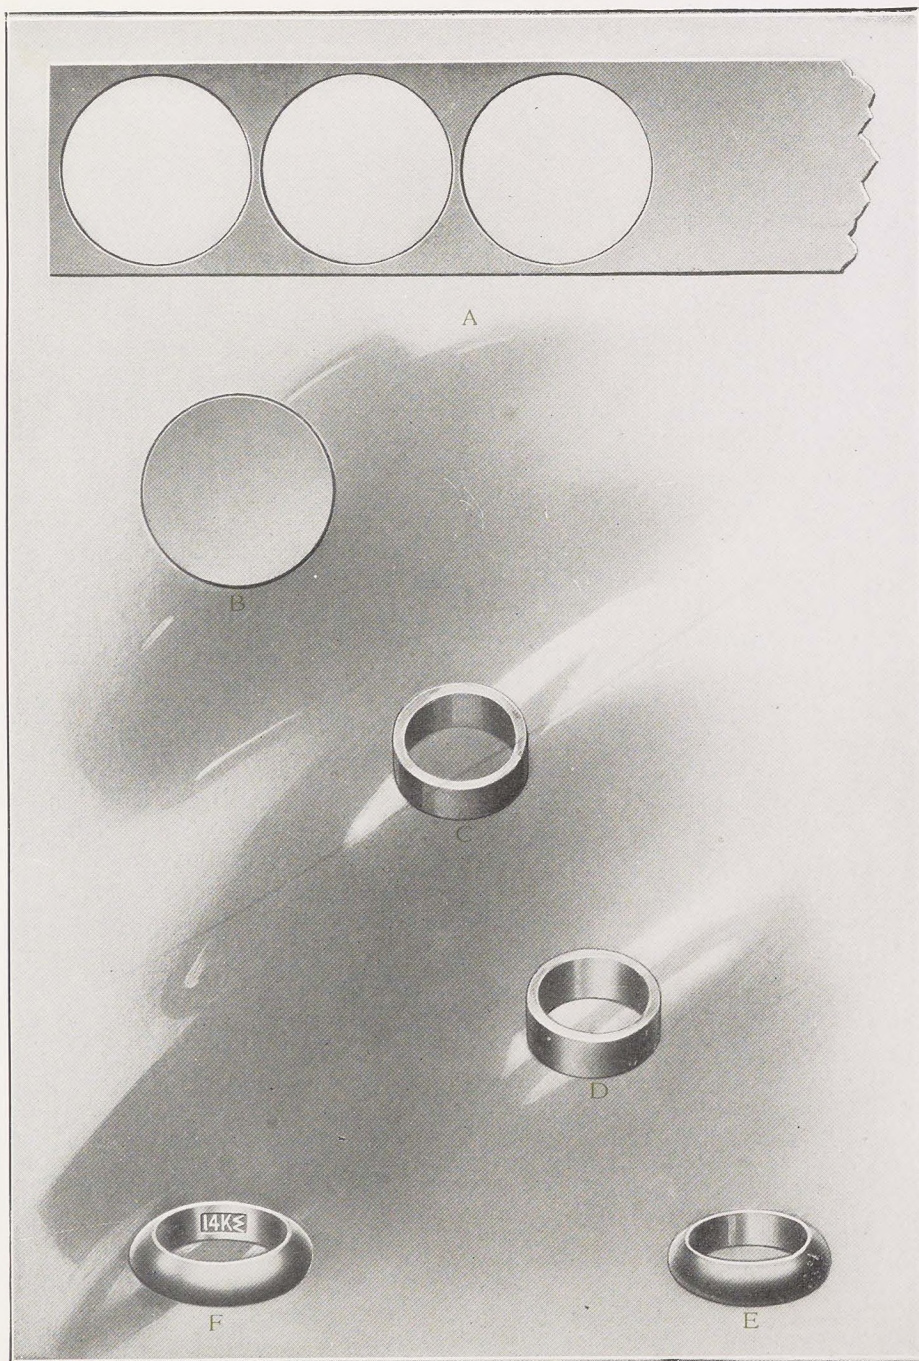

The flat ring is placed in dies of the proper shape, and by a heavy press, capable of exerting a pressure of forty tons to the square inch, squeezed to the desired form—the result is a perfect shaped solderless ring, size 4, cut E.

The ring now goes to our patented spinner, where, being placed on a spindle, it is rolled to any finger size. An indicator shows the exact size of the ring at all times. When the required size is reached, turning of a handle releases the ring which slips from the spindle a finished ring, except for polishing and stamping, which is the last operation—cut F.

Gold is soft and porous unless worked. This rolling, punching, squeezing and hammering, gives toughness and hardness, destroys porousness, and permits the metal receiving and retaining a high polish. Our method of doing this is far in advance of usual practice. Our gold is scientifically alloyed and more thoroughly worked, giving an unusually tough or more perfectly wrought metal. Every jeweler selling our rings knows of their unusual wearing qualities.

As the wedding ring is purchased but once in a life time, it is important that you procure the ring which gives greatest satisfaction to the wearer.

Nature's Wonder Flower

The Arbutus

(Trailing Arbutus)

THE first wedding celebrated in the Pilgrim colony, took place in the early Spring, after their first Winter on the cold shores of New England. Very few flowers were yet in bloom, but on the hillsides of Plymouth, from under the dead leaves and melting snows, peeped the starry Arbutus, like the guiding Star of the East, as if to announce Heaven's benediction over the wedding.

This was a new flower to the Pilgrims, unknown in Europe or other parts of the world, and is distinctively American. With a dainty sprig in her little grey dress and a quaint bouquet of its blossoms in her hand, Susanna White, the first Pilgrim bride was married to Edward Winslow who was already a leader in the Colony, and later became its Governor.

The Arbutus blossom again gleams like a beacon light to happiness in the later romances of the Pilgrims. Longfellow's sweetest lines describe how John Alden came to woo the Puritan maid, Priscilla, with a cluster of Arbutus blossoms picked in the woods near her home.

These happy beginnings in distant years bestowed on the Arbutus that meaning found in quaint old dictionaries of flower symbolism: "Thee Only Do I Love."

Early in the morning the dainty Arbutus flower hanging from its delicate stem resembles a perfect human heart. As the day progresses the flower partially opens forming a little hanging bell and when the sunlight gradually increases in warmth the flower opens wide into a beautiful five pointed, fragrant star.

The Arbutus as a joyous wedding-bell.

If nature herself had intended the Arbutus for love and wedding rings, she could not have given it happier forms. In the space of only a few hours it shapes itself into forms marvelously appropriate—a pink white heart timidly pushing its way into the light of day, like the tender heart of the lover seeking companionship. The delicate petals, spreading at the tips, next fashion themselves into a perfect little bell—emblematic of the joyous wedding bell destined soon to ring out glad tidings. And as the flower slowly lifts its tender head, gracefully opens into a beautiful five pointed star like the guiding Star of the East pointing the way to lasting happiness.

The Arbutus as a pink-white heart.

The Arbutus as a five-pointed star.

Arbutus Blossom Wreath Wedding Ring

Conveys just what the Bride most craves—tender sentiment

(Name Trade Marked)

The unanimous approval and preference for the Arbutus Blossom Wreath Wedding Ring by both the jeweler and his customer makes this design the most popular wedding ring for solemnizing the life-long tie woven at the altar.

And justly so, for according to the story on the preceding page, if nature herself had intended this flower for love and wedding rings, she could not have given it happier forms. What other flower could be so appropriate? The heart of tender love—the joyous wedding bell—the guiding star to lasting happiness.

Every jeweler should select the Arbutus Blossom Wreath Wedding Ring either in the popular priced ring or the more expensive hand carved one for his most particular customers.

Diamonds

Rough Diamonds as mined, have little or no brilliancy and must be "cut" to reveal their hidden charms.

To "cut" diamond means to shape it so that the rays of light reaching the stone will be reflected back through the top of the stone instead of passing through it. In other words to make the stone a mirror—not a window pane.

Science has computed the exact proportions in which the diamond must be cut to attain maximum brilliancy. These proportions are accurately shown in the illustration below.

To obtain the utmost reflection of light, that portion of the diamond above the girdle must be in exact relation to the portion located below the girdle. The angle of the facets between the girdle and the table must be in exact relation to the facets between the girdle and the culet. The actual angle, proven by science, to give maximum brilliancy, is from 35 to 37 degrees for the facets between the girdle and table and from 40 to 42 degrees for the facets from girdle to culet, with 30% to 33⅓% of the depth of the stone above the girdle (A), and 70% to 66⅔% of the depth of the stone below the girdle (B).

The Brilliancy secured by closely adhering to the above proportions makes possible almost perfect refraction and reflection of all light reaching or passing into the stone. Any proportion other than the above gives considerably less brilliancy.

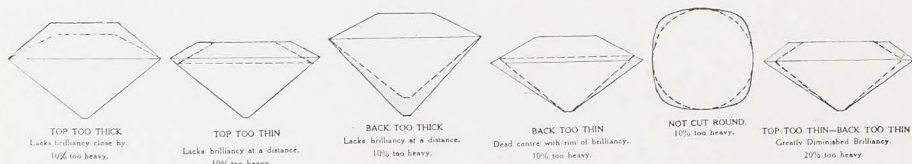

The brilliancy of a diamond can be greatly impaired by cutting the stone a bit too thick or too thin. Diamonds cut in this manner are termed "cut for weight" or cut so as to produce the heaviest possible stone regardless of brilliancy.

Diamonds

A Rough Diamond weighing $2\frac{1}{2}$ carats, costing \$100.00 per carat cut in scientific proportion will produce a 1 carat stone when finished, or \$250.00 worth of rough to secure a 1 carat diamond.

When science is ignored to gain more weight in the finished stone, brilliancy is always sacrificed. That is why poorly cut diamonds are worth considerably less money. When improperly cut, the $2\frac{1}{2}$ carats of rough will produce a finished stone weighing $1\frac{1}{4}$ carats at a cost of \$200.00 per carat ($1\frac{1}{4}$ carats at \$200.00 per carat = \$250.00). You can thus readily understand why improperly cut diamonds can be sold at a considerably lower price per carat than properly cut stones. Stones "cut for weight," as a rule, carry a larger profit for the cutter or jobber and still appear low in price.

Illustrations of diamonds "cut for weight" appear below. The solid outlines show the proportions in which these stones are cut. The dotted lines or shaded portions show the amount of material which should have been polished away. Diamonds being sold by weight, poorly cut stones can be marketed at a lower price per carat than properly cut stones, but the brilliancy, the one feature which makes the diamond prized so much, is sacrificed.

The Salable Colors of diamonds are faint blue white, white, faint yellow, and faint brown, in the order named. Pronounced blue is very rare and very valuable. Pronounced yellow and pronounced brown are unsalable.

To examine a diamond for its color, tilt the stone on its side in a diamond paper and blow your breath on it, thus covering the stone with a mist to dim the reflections, then the real color is seen. In this way "false color" diamonds can readily be detected.

If the diamond is mounted, its color may be determined but by no means as accurately. Mounted light brown are very apt to be mistaken for blue white. It is also difficult to judge a light yellow stone especially if mounted in a platinum or white gold setting.

Diamonds

The Names of the Rough Diamond, from which the different colors are cut, are the names given them by the Diamond Syndicate from whom we purchase the rough.

Color—

Our "FINE BLUE" is cut from "Fine Blue Jagersfontein" rough—is the color of clear spring water, with a slight bluish tint.

Our "BLUE WHITE" is cut from "Blue White Wesselton" rough—is the color of clear spring water, with the faintest bluish tint.

Our "FINEST WHITE" is cut from "Crystal" rough—is the color of clear spring water, without the bluish tint.

Our "GOOD WHITE" is cut from "Silver Cape" rough—is the color of clear spring water, with a very slight yellowish tint.

Perfection—

Flaws or Imperfections (do not confuse with cutting) consist of spots, fractures, or cracks, and bubbles. You have seen a cake of ice with an impurity frozen into it, or a break running partially through it, or containing small bubbles somewhere within its interior.

Sometimes many infinitely small, colorless bubbles form a "cloud" in a diamond. The spot may be so tiny it is difficult to find with a very powerful glass or large enough to occupy a good portion of the stone. A break may be one thousandth of an inch long with seemingly no thickness (merely the shadow of a hair line), or it may run practically all the way through the diamond. It may reach the surface or be entirely within the diamond.

If you want to know whether a diamond contains flaws, do not use a single lens—a double lens is necessary.

Absolutely Perfect—

Our "C GRADE"—Absolutely flawless, have no blemish, or imperfection of any description whatsoever.

Commercially Perfect—

Our "V GRADE"—Have a tiny blemish or a minute fracture less than one one-thousandth of an inch in size or approximately the size of the point of a very fine needle. The imperfection in this grade is extremely difficult to find even with a powerful glass.

First Imperfect—

Our "W GRADE"—Very slightly imperfect, have a very small imperfection or blemish approximately two one thousandths of an inch in size, hidden beneath the facets of the stone. Requires close inspection with a strong glass to find.

Second Imperfect—

Our "Z GRADE"—Slightly imperfect. The spot or blemish is about three or four one-thousandths of an inch in size, invisible to the naked eye, except on closest inspection and then only at certain angles.

Diamonds

Third Imperfect—

Our "X GRADE"—The imperfection can be seen if looked for carefully with the naked eye, but does not in the least affect the brilliancy of the stone.

This third imperfect grade is the lowest grade we sell, although many diamonds are marketed far more imperfect.

In the rough some diamonds are found literally full of spots, cracks, bubbles, or imperfections of all descriptions. They are useless, except for mechanical purposes and are sold uncut under the trade name of "Bort." Many uses are found for Bort, such as imbedding in the teeth of heavy circular saws, used in sawing marble or granite,—in core drills for sampling rocky mineral deposits, etc. Pulverized, it is used for polishing the diamonds worn for personal adornment. Should we carry lower grades of imperfect diamonds and use the same steps of graduations in our grading, Bort would be fiftieth grade imperfect.

Values—

The price of diamonds is determined upon the fineness of color, the degree of perfection, brilliancy or cutting, and size of the stone. The prices we quote give an accurate idea as to the range of these values. Note the rapidity of increase in the cost per carat of our finest grade from $\frac{1}{4}$ to 2 carat and the great decrease in value of the larger stone when there is the slightest flaw. In the Wesselton Grade and in the Crystal Grade, you will note the decrease in value, for imperfection is roughly 10% for each step until the third grade is reached. Here the jump is more, for the reason they are too imperfect to be quick sellers, and are not so carefully sorted.

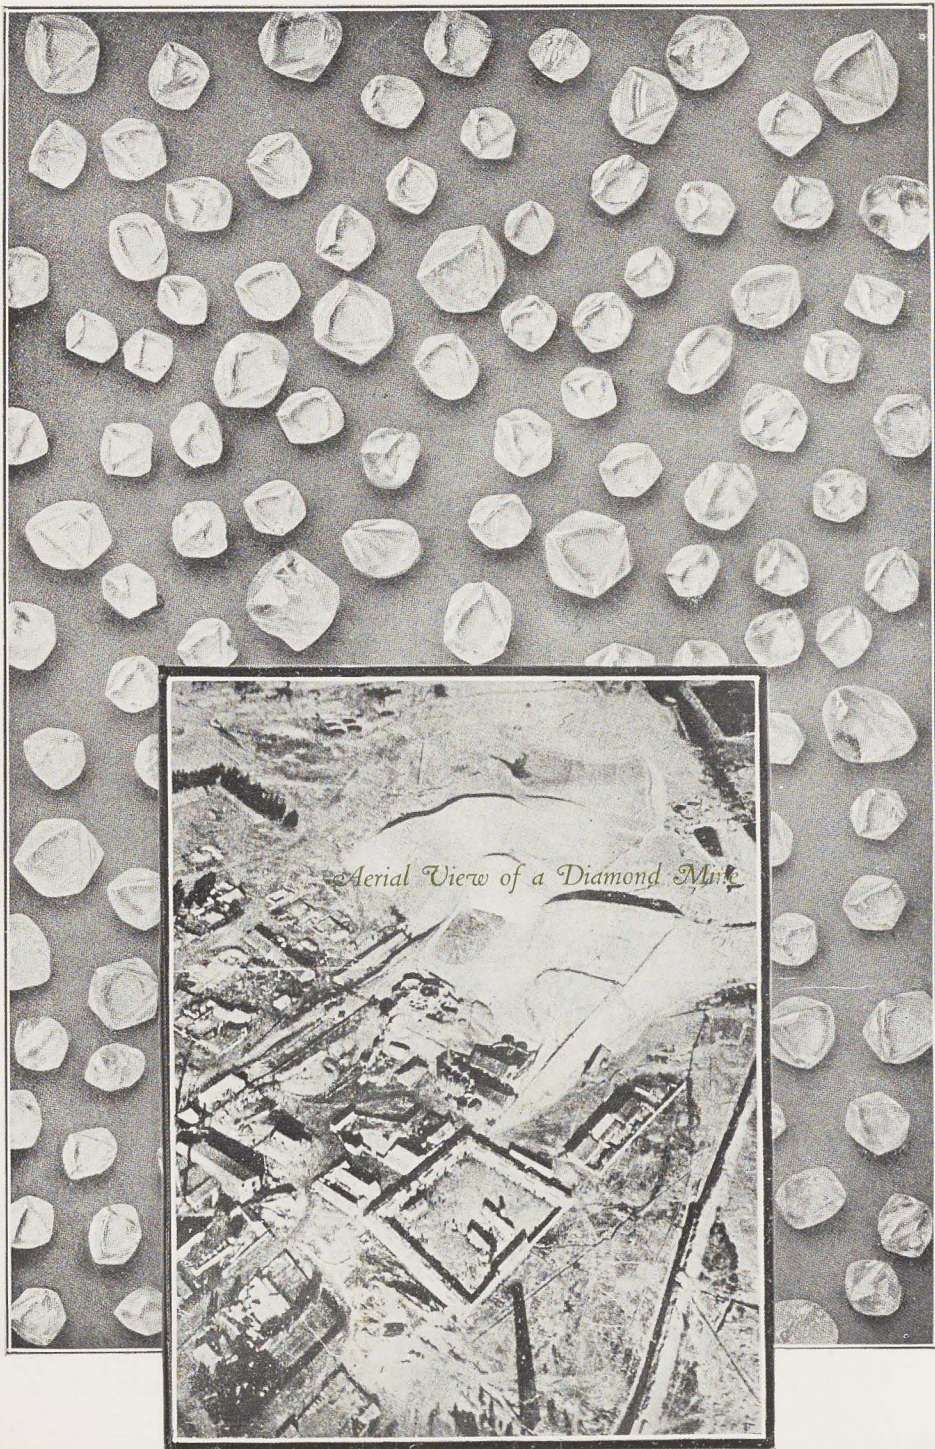

In 1893 we first decided to engage in the Diamond business, and began importing cut and polished stones from Europe. Adding the usual small profit, which had already made our house famous, sales grew very rapidly, so rapidly in fact, we experienced great difficulty in securing the high standard of cutting and perfection demanded. As a consequence arrangements were made to import rough diamonds only and cut them ourselves, thus controlling the make or brilliancy of our stones.

The firm of J. R. WOOD & SONS has played no small part in the building up of present day high standards of cutting in America.

It might be interesting to note that over ten thousand retail jewelers continuously buy their diamonds from us, and when it is considered that our diamonds are judged solely on their merits, one fact stands out boldly, our prices are lower than those of any other house.

L'OrvinSwiss MovementJ. R. Wood & Sons CaseThe Perfect Wrist Watch

New—to the American jewelry trade and public—a lady's wrist watch that will keep time!

New—to the jewelry trade—a Swiss Watch with interchangeable parts and a complete stock of these parts immediately available to every customer of J. R. Wood & Sons.

Jars, jolts, quick changes in position and rapidly fluctuating temperature is the especial lot of the wrist watch. The ordinary watch cannot accommodate itself to these conditions. Hence poor time-keeping qualities, the necessity of re-winding two or three times a day to keep running, returns to the jeweler for many repairs and always a dissatisfied customer. The reason Orvin Wrist Watches keep perfect time, when the ordinary wrist watch fails to do so, is because of the perfection of each individual part. This applies especially to the escapement; the precision of the balance wheel, hairspring, lever and escape wheel.

L'Orvin movements are made in a Swiss factory equipped with everything for the production of every part of the watch from the metal in the rough to the finished movement. M. Orvin, whose name appears on the dial of each movement, comes of a family of famous Swiss watchmakers. Records of the family go back to the time of the Crusaders. A pretty legend is told regarding the origin of the family name. Orvin is the combination of two French words which it is said originally were written "vin d'or," meaning "wine of gold," and it is supposed that earlier members of the family were famous vintners.

Today in the wonderful Orvin factory there are three generations of Orvins actively engaged in the production of Orvin movements. Where formerly every part of these Swiss movements were laboriously made by hand, now you will find this factory most completely equipped with precision machinery which turns out the various parts almost by magic.

The machines which insure the interchangeability so important for practical repair and easy replacement of parts seem almost human in their ingenuity. But the element controlling the quality of these Swiss watches is found in the remarkable ability of the Swiss artisans to perfect each part and in those precision tests through which the parts must pass before they are put in Orvin movements or made a part of Orvin reserve stock.

The marvelous knowledge of the workings of a watch which the Swiss possess amounts almost to "second sight," and comes of the inheritance handed down by generation after generation of watch makers. Any prejudice which might exist against some Swiss watches comes from a practise instituted and commercialized by outsiders: that of buying up the discards—the parts of watches that have not met the precision requirements for the best grades of watches and which formerly were destroyed as unworthy of use in a good Swiss Watch.

In the Orvin factory testing of these parts is brought to such perfection that an American watchmaker might assemble a new movement out of parts taken at random from one hundred Orvin Watches and after simple regulating for a few days the new watch would keep perfect time.

J. R. Wood & Sons, having made watch cases of highest quality for many years, have deemed it advisable to procure a high grade movement—one in keeping with the enviable reputation of J. R. Wood & Sons' cases, and sell to the trade a complete watch.

Orvin Movements

The Orvin movement is not a cheap Swiss product—it is a high grade timekeeper, in keeping with the watch cases we ourselves make.

Orvin movements are made by the most skilled watchmakers of Switzerland and are adjusted with great care before shipping to our factory.

Lever movement, 15 and 16 red ruby jewels. The mainspring is large enough to keep the watch running for 36 hours, which is quite an improvement over the usual small watch which must be wound more than once daily in order to keep time. The mainspring is encased in a safety barrel to prevent injury to the wheel train should the mainspring break. Cut, compensating balance. Breguet hairspring. Steel escape wheel and double roller. The movement is beautifully finished with fine bird's-eye damaskeening.

The dials are enameled and will not tarnish. They can be washed when soiled without injury to the numerals.

All parts of Orvin movements are interchangeable and low in cost. A stock of this material is carried by each of our three offices, New York, Chicago, and San Francisco. Orvin Wrist Watches are sold with silk ribbon and snap attached, packed in a neat, silk lined, gold stamped leather box.

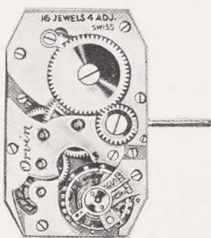

J. R. Wood & Sons guarantee complete satisfaction for Orvin Wrist Watches.

ORIENTAL Superstition?—Perhaps so—but at least an interesting relic of Asiatic Antiquity. Alleged by the Chinese to be almost uncanny in its power to bring to the wearer GOOD LUCK, Health, Happiness, Prosperity and Long Life. There is only one authentic Chinese Good Luck Ring—unearthed after months of travel, adventure and research. It is around this original ring only, that ancient Chinese legend weaves an age old history of unfailling Good Luck.

It is said that practically every Chinese statesman of reknown and unusually successful business man of China has worn this ring.

The original ring only is stamped with a Σ People everywhere are demanding the Genuine Chinese Good Luck Ring, stamped with a Σ , much to the discomfort of many competitors who have appropriated this design from us. Stock only the original and reap the benefits.

Many hundreds of thousands have been sold, making it the biggest selling one pattern ring that has ever been introduced to the American public.

Hundreds of requests from jewelers have been received, asking us to bring out other articles carrying the same alleged, mysterious and wonder-working Chinese characters. On the following pages are listed the entire family of Chinese Good Luck items.

Extraordinary History of Our Trade Mark

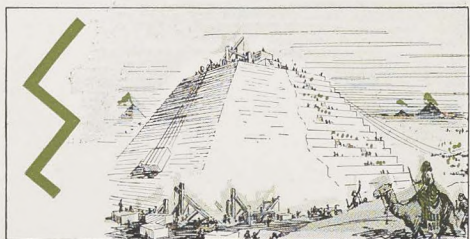

Neanderthalman 25,000 B. C.

Reindeer—First Real Man.

In Early Writings of Hebrews

In Pharaoh's Time.

FOR two generations there has been something extraordinary about the way goods sell stamped with the J. R. Wood & Sons' trade mark.

Retail jewelers from coast to coast have repeatedly told us that goods so stamped find a more ready sale in their stores than any other merchandise they have in stock. Merchandise stamped with the Σ has, as a matter of fact, sold so extensively that in the jewelry trade J. R. Wood & Sons have grown to be the largest users of gold in America.

Some of our competitors have accredited our success by saying "J. R. Wood & Sons have always been LUCKY. Our success really has been due to high grade merchandise of honest quality, skillfully manufactured and sold at a more modest profit than is customary. If this constitutes LUCK—then we ARE LUCKY."

It has developed that our trade mark really is an ancient sign of GOOD LUCK which makes the following authoritative sketch most interesting. We are indebted to Dr. Segrain of the University of Pennsylvania, for the following historical sketch of this mark.

It was a symbol used by earliest man and indicated, in picture drawing, a bow. A man confronted with a wild beast in the forest considered himself LUCKY if he had a bow and arrow with him. As a consequence, the symbol was known as a LUCKY omen.

It was found on chiseled rocks estimated to be many thousands of years older than the Christian Era. Through many centuries this symbol, Σ , has been prominent in most of the semi-civilized and civilized Asiatic, European and African tribes. Through Mediterranean, African, Chinese and Arabian sections this sign was constantly used—through Biblical times, the symbol Σ in varying forms always represented good fortune or good luck.

Extraordinary History of Our Trade Mark

THE Chinese added a further interpretation to this mark and called it "Child of Love," or the modern "Cupid's Bow."

From the co-mingling of these early tribes, through vast ages of slow development, written letters and alphabets developed gradually with this symbol Σ always prominent and apparently always meaning GOOD LUCK either in love, war, hunting, fishing or in trade.

The symbol is quite prominent in the alphabet of the early Phoenicians, the symbol being naturally very popular because of its meaning. This probably explains why it became the most used letter of all alphabets—Hebrew, Hellenic and Egyptian writings. An example is the Greek letter Epsilon which is a development of this same symbol. It is the most popular letter of ancient alphabets remaining to this day in the English alphabet in the form of the letter E which is the most used of all letters in writing. If you will write the letter (E) in the Greek fashion (ϵ), as many writers do, the similarity of this sign is quite apparent.

Bridging the gap of time we find it was used in the early cowboy days on the Western plains as a favored branding mark for cattle, and was known as the lazy W. The brand, naturally, meaning good luck to the ranch owner. Horses and cows so branded were supposed to be less apt to stray or be stolen.

Its latest usage was its adoption by this firm two generations ago as a trade mark for jewelry.

With Early Chinese, " Σ " Signified Love—Cupid.

Early Arabians Used the " Σ " Symbol.

Favored Good Luck Brand on the Western Plains.

Today the Symbol of Good Fortune in Wedding Rings.

I believe the Σ Sterling Silver Pencil is absolutely the biggest value on the market today - Jewelers everywhere write us about the remarkable success they are having with it. One jeweler writes:-

"Two weeks ago, I ordered 1 dozen Σ Sterling Silver Pencils - sold them in 2 days. I then ordered a Gross and they are almost all gone - I now want you to rush me 1000 more."

This is but one of quite a number of enthusiastic letters.

In offering the trade a new and superior artificial pearl, J. R. Wood & Sons are living up to their reputation for originality and service by controlling the source of supply for the benefit of legitimate jewelers only.

La Replica is, as the name signifies, a replica of the finest genuine oriental pearl, in weight, color, size and perfection of form.

The manufacture of La Replica has grown out of the craftsmanship employed in the duplication of genuine oriental pearls for society women, actresses and artists of note who wear them on public occasions where protection against theft cannot easily be accomplished.

Since the days of de Roscoff and his experiments in the imitation of pearls there have been many improvements in processes and the results obtained. Today we believe the trade will agree that in La Replica we have come as near perfection in Oriental pearl duplication as is humanly possible.

The seven points of beauty by which the expert judges a pearl are brought to special perfection in La Replica. In tint, shape, lustre, reflection, refraction, opalescence and iridescence—these pearls cannot be surpassed by any artificial pearl made and it requires an experienced person to distinguish La Replica from the genuine.

La Replica Pearls are graded, matched and strung with utmost care under the direct supervision of a master craftsman in the art of duplicating genuine oriental pearls. All strings are made up on special silk thread with clasps of platinum or 18K white gold.

Each string sold in an individual box, priced according to length of string, matching of color, shape of pearl, grade of product and style of clasp used.

La Replica offers the highest value in artificial pearls on the market today. The usual policy of J. R. Wood & Sons in eliminating the middle-man or jobber and selling at a remarkably low price, quality considered, should make profitable history for the business of every progressive retail jeweler who handles this line of pearls.

La Replica Pearl Prices

La Replica strings are stocked in pearl sizes such as are used on 5th Avenue, New York and duplicate the size of the usual genuine Oriental Pearl string as well as their wonderful appearance. They can also be supplied in any of the larger pearl sizes commonly used by most other artificial pearl manufacturers, at same price as listed. (See page 199 for pearl sizes.)

We also carry La Replica Pearls strung with knots in the silk cord between each pearl to prevent loss if string breaks, as is customary on most genuine pearl strings.

J.R. WOOD & SONS

J. R. Wood & Sons,
Gentlemen—

I look upon your organization as a National Institution whose service to the retail jeweler is of vital importance.

By holding your prices down during the war, you prevented many manufacturers from profiteering and taking advantage of the times. I might say, that on good authority you were the Nation's Standard for price comparison and you should be patronized by every retail jeweler in the United States for the important service you have rendered and are still rendering.

I also want to add that, in my opinion, your prices were not "Cut Throat Prices" but were fair and square to everyone, enabling any competing manufacturer to give honest and just pay to their employees as well as to make a small, but I think fair margin of profit for themselves, provided their selling costs were not too high.

Continued success to you.

Instant Polisher for Gold and Silver

Economical, efficient and thoroughly satisfactory is this Instant Polisher. Consists of a wad of material impregnated with a harmless chemical which is unexcelled for polishing gold and silver.

Use it in your store, because it is far superior and cheaper than chamois impregnated with rouge.

Offer it for sale to your customers—they'll thank you for the suggestion—for it will keep their silverware and jewelry looking like new. Include a trial box with your next order. PRICE, PER BOX, 40c
